HOLLOWAY DIAMONDS INTRODUCE A NEW AND INCREASINGLY RARE PINK DIAMOND COLLECTION

Holloway Diamonds was founded as Precious Metals in 1976 by geologist Garry Holloway to pursue his first love for diamond and jewellery design. Going on to master the science of diamond cutting; Garry has since been influential world-wide in advancing diamond cutting. At the same time, his individually handcrafted jewellery has become highly sought-after for its dazzling beauty and craftsmanship.

Holloway Diamonds secured over 700 exceptionally beautiful, vivid and intensely coloured pink Argyle diamonds and have masterfully created a stunning collection of pink and contrasting white diamonds; most of this collection are one of a kind originals.

As beautiful “flukes of nature,” the pink diamond is a distinctive gem of the highest quality and is set to increase in value exponentially, as the world’s primary pink diamond mine faces dwindling production. The output of diamonds from the Argyle mine in West Australia is now around a quarter of what it recorded a decade ago. This shocking news paints a stark picture for the future and this already rare gem is becoming more valuable by the day.

The fact that the pieces are designed and made in house by the creative team at Holloway Diamonds ensures that each and every piece will become a unique and highly valuable item.

Quite simply, Holloway Diamonds are experts in diamonds that outshine.
